

THE NATHAN HALE INSTITUTE

"I wish to be useful, and every kind of service necessary to the public good becomes honorable by being necessary."

Captain Nathan Hale
1755 - 1776

PROGRAM

The Nathan Hale Institute, staffed by personnel experienced in intelligence and counterintelligence operations on both international and national levels, guided by advisory and executive boards, carries out the following activities:

- * Publications
-  Seminars
-  Lectures

PUBLICATIONS

The Hale Institute publishes authoritative monographs on intelligence principles, practices, and needs, which complement the publications of the Hale Foundation such as, The World Peace Council and Soviet 'Active Measures,' and The President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

SEMINARS & LECTURES

The Hale Institute sponsors seminars, lectures, and other joint activities with other groups in the informal "intelligence community" made up of unofficial organizations interested in intelligence.

FUNDING

The Hale Institute derives its funding from private contributions. It is classified as a Section 501 (c)(3) organization under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. All contributions are tax-deductible.

BOARD OF ADVISORS

RAY S. CLINE, Chairman of the Board of Advisors, is Senior Associate at The Center for Strategic and International Studies, Georgetown University, and Professor of International Relations. Early in World War II, Cline began a career in intelligence with the U.S. Navy and the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) and subsequently served with the U.S. Government for 31 years. He served as Deputy Director of the CIA and from 1969-1973, he was Director of the Bureau of Intelligence and Research at the Department of State. An author of numerous books, his most recent include Terrorism: The Soviet Connection (with Dr. Yonah Alexander), Crane, Russak 1984. Cline is Vice President of the Veterans of the Office of Strategic Services and is founder and President of the National Intelligence Study Center. He is also a member of the Board of Visitors of the United States Defense Intelligence College.

FRANCIS J. McNAMARA. A military-intelligence officer in Burma in World War II, McNamara has served as Staff Director of the House Committee on Internal Security (Un-American Activities), as Executive Secretary of the Subversive Activities Control Board, and has written and lectured extensively on Communism and related security issues. He was formerly the Executive Director of the Hale Foundation.

WILLIAM A. BRANIGAN, Bachelor of Arts, University of Notre Dame; Juris Doctor, Union University Albany Law School. Worked for FBI from 1941 until his retirement in 1976 when he was section chief, Soviet counter-intelligence and counterespionage. He is an active member of the Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI, chairing the Information Committee. He is also a member of the Association of Former Intelligence Officers, the Security and Intelligence Fund, and the American Security Council.

HERBERT ROMERSTEIN served as a staff member of the United States Congress for 18 years, including six years as a professional staff member of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. He also served as Minority chief investigator for the House Committee on Internal Security. He presently works on countering Soviet influence operations as an employee of the Executive Branch. Mr. Romerstein is the author of Soviet Support for International Terrorism, The World Peace Council and Soviet 'Active Measures', Soviet Intelligence Activities in the United States and other works.

DONALD F.B. JAMESON is Vice President of Research Associates International, Ltd., a Washington area risk assessment firm. Previously, he served as Secretary-Treasurer of the Tetra Tech International. He retired from the CIA in 1973, where he specialized in matters relating to the Soviet Union, lecturing and writing extensively on Soviet intelligence services, Soviet covert action, the Soviet navy, and Russian culture and history. Jameson is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, where he was in the first class to study Russian. He has an M.A. in international relations and law and the Certificate from the Russian Institute of Columbia University.

PURPOSE

The Nathan Hale Institute is dedicated to enhancing the capability of United States intelligence to serve the fundamental objectives of the Constitution -

"...insure the domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense,
promote the general welfare."

OBJECTIVES

To educate national leaders and the public on intelligence matters so that their purposes, needs and processes are understood. To educate these audiences in the need for a strong intelligence community and such aspects of intelligence as:

- * clandestine collection,
- * the interrelationship of the operational and analytical elements
of the intelligence community,
- * covert action,
counterintelligence and security.

To discuss ways that the intelligence community might better serve national security policy.

TASK

To help mobilize, coordinate and participate in the efforts of persons and groups with similar views on intelligence and security matters.

THE NATHAN HALE INSTITUTE
422 First Street, S.E.
Washington, D.C. 20003
Telephone 202-546-2293